City opts to pay $250,000 state fine

■ Grand jury requests more information on city sewage plant's bidding process

By Steve Marschke

The Yolo County Grand Jury released its new annual report last week, including a report on its investigations of the West Sacramento sewage treatment plant.

Included in the report was a recommendation that West Sacramento contest the amount of the unusually high $250,000 fine the city has received at the hands of the state regional water quality control board. But that recommendation came after the city had already mailed a check to the state -- and city manager Joe Goeden said Tuesday that even if the jury's report had been issue earlier, the city probably would have paid the fine anyway.

"Deep in our heart, we had some issues with the size of the fine as far as the nature of our violations," Goeden commented. "But we know it was within (the state's) discretion. Rather than appeal it and spend a lot more time and money to have a judge tell us it was within their discretion, we sent the check over with our letter."

The money came from a city sewer enterprise fund, but - depending on future city council action -- that fund may be replenished with funds from the redevelopment agency or other sources city officials find appropriate.

The fines were levied after state investigators criticized the plant's operations, including the failure to report hundreds of water quality tests, some of which showed potential chlorine violations and other problems at the plant.

The city was also investigated by officials of the U.S. Attorney's office and California Environmental Protection Agency. And while neither of those agencies has launched criminal prosecu-

Two murder suspects enter 'not guilty' plea

Two men charged with the murder of a Sacramento man last month have entered pleas of not guilty in Yolo County Superior Court.

The body of Dean Janssen, 40, was found near West Sacramento's southern city limits June 18 close to Jefferson Blvd. Jannsen had been shot to death, in what police believe was a property dispute.

Darrel Myers, 47, and Charles Sennett, 22, have entered pleas of not guilty and are scheduled for a preliminary hearing July 14.

Myers has a previous conviction of manslaughter in the death of his teenage wife 17 years ago in Davis.

River City grads stage 'The Fantasticks' in Sac

■ Locally educated drama producer says feature will present one of the strongest casts in the Sacramento area

By Steve Marschke

Former River City High School drama students Leah Ladd and Chris Tulysewski are taking their act across the river.

Ladd, 21, is producing an August run of "The Fantasticks" to be held at the Old Eagle Theater on Sacramento's Front Street.

"We really want to let people know we've got a great show," she said. "Our goal is to bring a professional production to Sacramento and make it artistic."

Ladd describes "The Fantasticks" as a "musical comedy about love and the pains it takes to find it.

"It's an ensemble show with a lot of absurd subplots that cast shadows on a lot of people's lives. It's brilliantly written because it's so simple, but it's one of the most entertaining shows."

"The Old Eagle helps the setting of the show because it also is simple. It has such a history, it really brings out the timeless beauty of the show."

The theater seats 154 people "intimately," she said.

Steve Minow is starring in the production, and West Sacramentans will find resident Daniel Slauson in the cast and River City High School alumni Brian Benson playing percussion in the four-piece orchestra.

Tulysewski, 20, will direct it.

Both Ladd and Tulysewski are products of River City' drama program under the direction of Roy Engoron. Ladd credits Engoron, as well as local resident and arts booster Grace Ohlson, with helping to kindle her own enthusiasm for theater.

Nine months of the year, Ladd now works professionally as an actress. She works on dramas promoting health and safety concerns for the very well equipped community relations arm of Kaiser Permanente in the Bay Area.

"The Fantasticks" will play from Aug. 4 to Aug. 13, with various evening and matinee performances. All seats are $10.00, and can be ordered by calling 446-6761.

Ladd promisesa fine performance of "family entertainment" and a "great show" for all West Sacramentans who make the trip across the river for "The Fantasticks."

Tuttle takes over West Sac's helm as city's seventh mayor

■ First woman mayor sees position partly as goodwill ambassador, hopes to provide over renewed construction and development

By Steve Marschke

With a dose of dissension, the West Sacramento City Council chose a new mayor and vice mayor from its ranks at a special meeting Friday evening.

Cindy Tuttle was confirmed as the city's new mayor following a 5-0 vote on the motion by Wes Beers, who ended a one-year stint at the post. Tuttle's selection followed in the council's habit in recent years to rotate the position by seniority; she had served as mayor pro tem (vice mayor) during the past year.

But following a council motion to make Greg Potnick (himself a former West Sacramento mayor) the new vice mayor, council member Roland Hensley stated that he wished to nominate another council member and former mayor, Bill Kristoff, for that post. Because the motion for Potnick was still on the floor, that vote was immediately taken.

CINDY TUTTLE, new mayor of West Sacramento, with her daughter Shelley.

With Hensley and Kristoff dissenting, Potnick was confirmed.

Tuttle said she was honored, but not awed, by her new position. She is the first female mayor in the city's seven-year history.

"I think my role is basically as one-fifth of the city council," she commented Tuesday. "It's very important we continue to listen to all the council members. My focus will be to try to make sure they are all heard, and that public input remains vital as well."

Tuttle, 35, has lived in West Sacramento for ten years. She is married to a postal worker, Donn Tuttle, and the couple have a nine-year old daughter, Shelley, who attends Westmore Oaks Elementary School.

She is a property management advisor with Property Management Services of West Sacramento.

Tuttle was elected to the city council in 1992 in a campaign in which she was vigorously opposed by the West Sacramento Police Officers Association during a period of intense labor strife. She has also served on the city's economic development advisory commission, planning commission, West Sacramento Housing Development Corporation, Yolo County Housing Authority and Children's Fund Board.

She said she saw her chief duty as mayor (besides presiding over city council meetings) as being the "number one goodwill ambassador for the community, being willing to talk on both sides of the river about the good things in West Sacramento."

Among the headaches she expects during the coming year are the city budget, which may suffer from lingering effects of the recession as well as from the loss of some tax revenue to the state.

"Our immediate future concern is the budget, and keeping the level of services up," she said. "We also have some major developments. We're doing the 5th Street widening and Harbor Blvd., and a lot of times when you have construction projects of that size, you have problems. Hopefully, we won't have too many."

Port commissioner takes issue with approach on tax district

By David Weller

Port of Sacramento Commissioner Victoria Bingham has filed a complaint with the Sacramento County Grand Jury about the operation of the Port.

In a recent interview with the News-Ledger, Bingham would not be specific about the nature of her complaint, but she was quick to point out that she is not accusing anybody in particular of illegal activities.

She said the problems with the port are "multifaceted and complicated. (The complaint) just has to do with the running of the port and the business operation."

Bingham has publicly criticized the port management, saying that administrators have failed to answer questions she has raised about a proposed tax assessment district.

The port administration is considering the creation of a special assessment district which would include a $10 tax per homeowner every year for ten years.

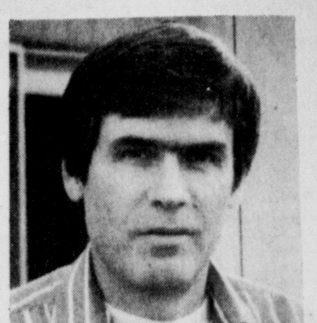

The district would include eastern Yolo County (including West Sacramento) and a large part of Sacramento County. The port has hired a consulting company to study whether the district is feasible and the commission expects to have enough information by September to make a decision.

The purpose of the district would be to upgrade aging equipment and to deepen the channel from 35 to 40 feet in order to attract larger cargo ships. The port is currently undergoing a legal dispute with PG&E over who must pay to move utility lines when the channel is deepened.

Double-dating with Lippy Langford: evening with a twist . . .

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Back in my fraternity days, I did any number of stupid things I now wish I hadn't. One which I was recently reminded of was a blind double-date I went on with Lippy Langford (fictitious name) — one of my best friends. He picked me up at the frat house — and it all started out so innocently.

Lippy, who was seated behind the steering wheel of his brand new 1966 Chevy Malibu, arched his back and strained his neck to get a better look at his handsome face in the rearview mirror. After he carefully ran his comb through his long blond hair, he began methodically inspecting his teeth for anything his toothbrush might have missed.

"Come on, Lippy," I pleaded, "we're already late. At least tell me their names."

"Okay, okay. Carol and Debbie — they're cousins — Debbie is yours."

"So what does she look like?"

"Who cares, man, this is just a trial run."

"Trial run?" I asked. "What are you talking about?"

"Look down there and tell me what you see," said Lippy with a devilish smile, pointing down below the car radio. "Go on. Check it out."

"I don't see anything," I said.

"Exactly," said Lippy proudly. "Now bend on down there and take a really good look."

On closer examination, I discovered a thin black cord tacked down to the lush floor carpet. The cord originated from underneath the driver's seat and at the end of it, taped securely to the underbelly of the radio, was a microphone. "You've bugged your own car?" I asked in disbelief.

"And all I have to do to turn it on is push this little button under my seat. See?" He gave me a quick demonstration.

"But why?" I asked.

"Man, how many bucks do you think we've wasted over the years taking out girls we couldn't even get to kiss us? Well, starting tonight, we're going to have what a guy really needs nowadays — the inside information."

To make a long, very eventful story, short, Lippy and I picked up Carol and Debbie and took them to the Starlite Drive-in theater. We had barely pulled into our space when Lippy slyly reached down, turned on his hidden tape recorder and announced that he and I had to go to the bathroom.

"Already?" asked Carol, a little surprised.

"Yep," said Lippy as he quickly climbed out of the car and motioned for me to do likewise. "We'll bring back something to eat and drink," he added.

As we strolled up and down the hilly asphalt on our way to the snack bar, Lippy smiled and said, "We'll give them at least fifteen minutes, okay? Now just think about it, man — two girls who know each other really well, left all alone to shoot the breeze. I bet they're spilling their guts right this very minute!"

"We're sick, you know that, don't you, Lippy?"

"Ain't it the truth!" he said as he laughed out loud and pounded me on the shoulder.

When we returned to the car loaded down with cokes and popcorn, Lippy very casually reached down and turned off the recorder and announced that he had an early class the next morning and that we probably wouldn't be able to stay for the second feature. When the girls didn't seem to be the slightest bit disappointed, I began to worry.

A few hours later, after we had dropped Carol and Debbie off and parked along a secluded stretch of William Land Park, Lippy eagerly dragged out his tape recorder, rewound its contents, and grinning from ear to ear, pushed the play button.

The first thing we learned about Carol and Debbie was that they knew more cuss words than we did. Since neither of them had uttered a single profane word the whole night — at least while we were in the car — this came as quite a shock. The real surprises, however, were still to come, and here are just a few of them — without the colorful language, of course:

"What is that awful cologne Lippy's wearing?" asked Carol. "I don't know about you, but I swear, I'm just about ready to barf."

"Why didn't you tell me Daryl was so skinny?" asked Debbie, her voice full of disappointment. "You know I can't stand skinny guys with no butt."

"What if this jerk tries to kiss me?" Carol asked her cousin. "If he does, I swear, I'm going to barf."

"Did you see that big old ugly mole on Daryl's face — right next to his nose?" asked Debbie. "He looks likeAbraham Lincoln."

And so it went, one demoralizing put down after another — none of which I've ever forgotten, but most of which — thank heavens — can't be reproduced here. "Well, Lippy," I finally managed to say after about five minutes of pure torture, "I don't know about you, but I think I've heard more than enough."

"I guess that was a pretty dumb idea, wasn't it, Abe?" mumbled Lippy, genuinely surprised that his little experiment had blown up in our faces.

I nodded my head yes as he turned off the recorder. "And don't forget to get rid of that tape!" I added.

In Memory of Chuy Arreoloa

Chuy My Brother, Chuy My Friend
I miss you so much that it hurts from within
With every day that you're gone
My heart skips a beat.
But my memories of you are for to always treasure and keep Sometimes I cry when I'm all alone missing you homie - wishing you were home.
I wish there was something to tell us that you are all right.
And that will always bother me every day and every night.
The things that happen in this world are hard to explain
A lot of it is good and a lot of it is pain.
But I must try and be very strong so I can be there for your familia especially your mom.
So if you hear me brother let me tell you this:
You're always in my prayers and your company I'll miss.
So with my love I love you even though you are out of my reach.
God Bless you always my brother with all the angels and may you rest in pea0e.
Dedicated to my homeboy Jesus-Arreola
Love always Tu Carnal Alfredo-Gamino
Peace.

SPORTS

The Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

Well, I've returned from two weeks of traveling around watching World Cup soccer. I need to go back to work to recover from my vacation!

The World Cup is down to the semi-finals on Wednesday with Italy playing Bulgaria in New Jersey and the tournament favorite, Brazil, against Sweden in Los Angeles.

Brazil and Sweden played to a 1-1 tie in the first round. Italy, the three-time world champions led by Roberto Baggio, has had to fight back to win their last two games.

The Bulgarians, who had not won an World Cup game until this year, have upset Mexico on penalty kicks and sent the defending champions, Germany, home early.

The 1990 World Cup in Italy averaged 50,420 fans. This year in the U.S., the average is up to 67,162. The 1998 World Cup will be played in France.

The final game this year is on Sunday, July 17 at 12:30 p.m. and should be Brazil vs. Italy, but the tournament has been filled with many upsets. The pressure is on Brazil to win and bring home the country's first World Cup trophy since 1970.

The Sacramento Knights (7-5) are in third place and host two games this weekend. Friday, July 16 against the Washington (D.C.) Warthogs and Saturday, July 17 against Monterrey, Mexico. Game time is 7:30 p.m. at the ARCO Arena.

At the All Star break, the Giants are 7 1/2 games behind the Dodgers and the A's are back in the race, trailing Texas by four games. Bonds, Williams and Rod Beck, who was a late replacement for Jose Rijo, were named to the NL team.

A's outfielder Ruben Sierra was the only player from Oakland selected to the AL team.

A boxing fundraiser has been set for July 16 at San Pedro Park in old Bryte, West Sacramento. The amateur card is set to start at 5 p.m. with ten bouts. The tax-deductible cost is $5.

See ya next week!

New scoreboard

The West Sacramento Rotary Club, UNOCAL, the Washington Unified School District, and the city of West Sacramento have combined resources to install the scoreboard on the new Alyce Norman/Bryte playfields. The scoreboard was installed in time for the little league sectional playoffs held on the same site.

For additional information, please call 373-5860.

Softball

The city of West Sacramento Department of Parks and Community Services is taking sign-ups for the fall adult softball league. The fee is $215.00 per team plus $5 for each non-resident player. League play will begin on August 22.

For more information, call 373-5860.

Local groups plans boxing exhibition for July 16 at West Sacramento park

A boxing exhibition will be held at 5:00 p.m. on Saturday, July 16, at San Pedro Park (708 North Hobson Aveue in West Sacramento).

The matchups will be sponsored by the Rodriquez Boxing Club and Powerhouse Ministries, Inc.

Admission will be $5 for anyone over 18, $2 for those between 12 and 17, and free to children 11 and under. Refreshments will be available.

Anyone interested in participating in the exhibition is asked to call 427-4554 or 371-8229.

Summer rowing at the Port

The UC Davis rowing team and the West Sacramento-based River City Rowing Club are offering several sessions of training in "crew" for high school-aged youth.

Crew (team rowing) is a prep, college and Olympic level sport. Participants will learn the basics of the sport, including optional weight training, during afternoon sessions at the Port of Sacramento in West Sacramento.

One upcoming session will last from July 11 to July 30, with on-the-water practices beginning at 4:00 p.m. Optional weight training begins at 5:30 p.m.

Another second session lasts from August 1 to August 20, with practices held at the same times of day.

During both sessions, students will be taught the technique of competitive rowing, which has little in common with "rowboat" style rowing.

An eight-person crew uses technique, skill, power and endurance to propel a 60-foot, 200 lb. racing "shell" over a race course. Experienced crews can cover the 1.25 mile standard race course in six or seven minutes.

The cost for one high school rowing session is $45, and includes a T-shirt and a barbeque dinner. High school students from all around the Sacramento area are invited. For more information, call coach Kevin Sherwood at 752-1886.

CSU Sac aquatic camps to youths

The CSU Sacramento Aquatic Center on Lake Natoma (off of Hazel Avenue, north of US 50 and east of the city of Sacramento) is offering a Summer Youth Aquatic Camp, which includes water safety and education.

Instruction in sailing, sailboarding, canoeing, kayaking, waterskiing, rowing and white water rafting will be offered to those aged 8-18, at both beginning and advanced levels. Camps will be held Monday through Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. through Aug. 26. and have already begun.

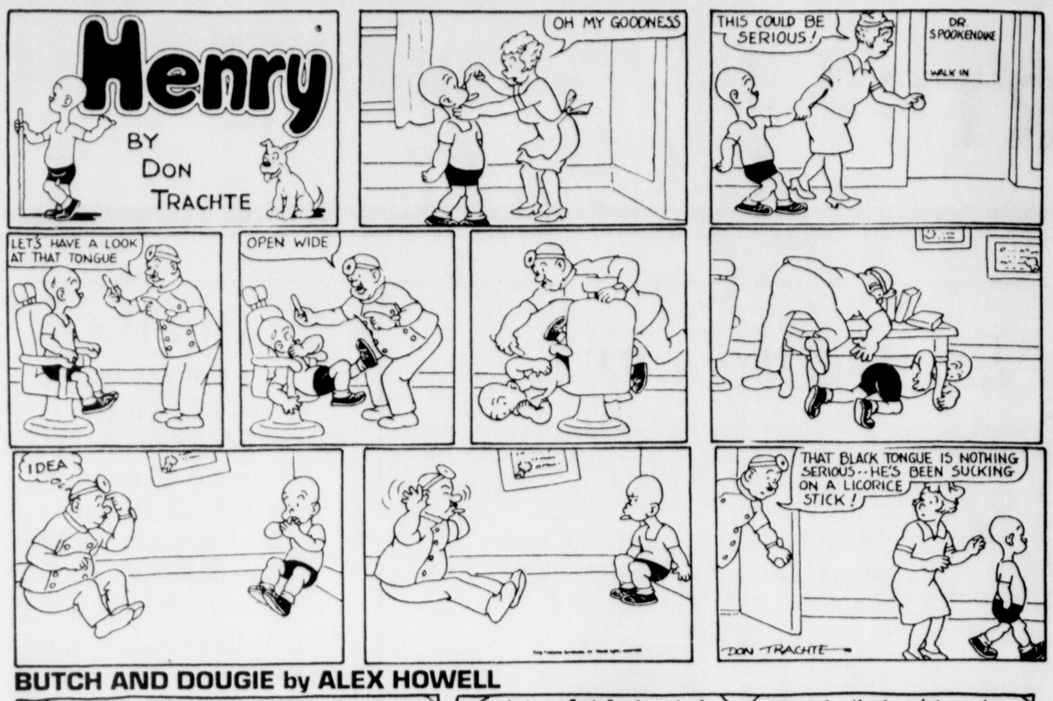

Each one-week session will cost $185 to $225 per camper. For more information, call 985-7239.

BIRD-SPEAK CONFUSION!

PONDER this: If a bird-in-hand is worth $2, what is the value of two in the bush? $2? $4? Fifty cents each? It's a puzzlement.

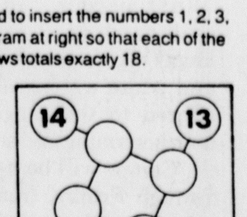

For another puzzlement, see the names of 10 birds listed below that have been deliberately altered. No. 1, for instance, is a robin red-breast. See if you can recognize the others.

1. Robin red-cheek.
2. Baltimore oracle.
3. Scarlet teenager.
4. Red-eyed video.
5. Purple martian.
6. Moaning dove.
7. Tifted tutmouse.

Taxpayers pay for sewage treatment mistakes

West Sacramento has agreed to pay a quarter of a million dollars worth of sewage fines to the state.

It is, of course regrettable that the city's taxpayers will be stuck with such a large bill, although it's easy to see why city officials have chosen not to fight the fine in court.

How did the fine get so large, when other cities in the region can seemingly get away with a relative "slap on the wrist" for pollution mistakes?

Partly because, as city officials often repeat, regional politics were at work here. For various reasons, state officials determined it was O.K. to come down hard on West Sacramento where another jurisdiction may have gotten away with less punishment.

But the large fine is also a result of West Sacramento's early intransigence in dealing with the faulty operations of its sewage plant. Management was heavy-handed, attempting to deny any wrongdoing while keeping the whistleblowers silent and in line. Only belatedly have they admitted any wrongdoing at all (keep in mind, the story was first reported in the News-Ledger over a year ago).

It is clear that incompetence is involved on some level in the public works department; there is still not sufficient evidence of true criminal intent.

Now that problems at the plant (the operational problems; not the personnel ones) have largely been fixed, it's time to watch for the other half of the solution. It's time for the new mayor, the city council and city manager to weed out the good administrators from the bad, and the competent ones from the incompetent within the public works department.

It's time to make sure, by changing any and all necessary personnel, that these kinds of mistakes do not happen again.

Invite McGruff to your Aug. 2, anti-crime block party from the West Sacramento Police Department

"Lights On Means Lights Out for Crime," will be the rallying cry Tuesday, August 2, when the citizens of West Sacramento join millions of other Americans in supporting the 11th annual "National Night Out Against Crime" campaign.

More than 8,600 communities and over 26 million citizens are expected to participate in the annual crime prevention event this year. "National Night Out," organized by the National Association of Town Watch (NATW) in cooperation with law enforcement agencies, anti-crime organizations, urges homeowners, apartment dwellers and businesses to turn on their exterior lights for security and spend the evening with their neighbors and police outdoors demonstrating solidarity against crime, drugs and violence.

"We are encouraging everyone throughout our community to participate in National Night Out this year," said Larry K. Gore, cheif of police. "We believe that getting tough on crime at the local level is one of the best ways to fight this national problem."

The U.S. Department of Justice says, "National Night Out is an outstanding way for all to express their determination to protest crime and enjoy security of their homes and neighborhoods."

The first "National Night Out" was held in 1984 and since then the event has grown dramatically to a point where last year 26 million citizens in over 8,600 communities in all 50 states participated.

This will be the first year that the city of West Sacramento has participated in this event. The event will be between the hours of 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. We are requesting residents to turn on the outside lights, lock your doors and spend the evening outside with neighbors and the police. There are various things that you can do as a group, such as block parties, cookouts, request visits from city officials, take flashlight walks (in groups, please) and plan youth games and activities.

If you would like more information on this or would like a visit by a city official or McGruff please contact our office and we will try to make sure someone stops by during the evening.

If you want a permit to close off the street for a block party, please contact our office as soon as possible, as it does take a couple of weeks to process.

Letters to the Editor

Now that the very successful State of the City community reception has been completed and the hustle and bustle of the primary election is over, I would like to take this opportunity to thank some very important businesses who were so tremendously helpful in making sure the city event was produced and that the people of West Sacramento had an opportunity to participate in a positive promotion for their community.

Of course the committee of Chamber of Commerce and city folks did a wonderful job in planning and producing the quality event. The mayor, the city council and staff are to be commended also.

One of the things that should be noted, however, is the fact that the event had financial encumbrances associated with its successful completion. I think it is incumbent upon us to let the people of the community know that the business community of Chamber members helped underwrite the event and that we should thank them publicly for their help.

The major sponsors were McCuen Properties, Farmers' Rice Cooperative, UNOCAL, U.S. Bank, Sutro and Company and the California Trucking Association. Other companies helping produce the event were Postal Instant Press (PIP); Tony's Fine Foods; Nor-Cal Beverage Company, Inc.; Placer Title Company; Raley's; Chicago Title Company; Kronick, Moskovitz, Tiedemann and Girard; and Jason Fernandez Design.

All of these companies are continually involved in the positive promotion of our community, and with all the negativism being aimed at us from outside, we are extremely grateful to them for their positive help.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento River registered two feet one inch, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday at high tide. The Yolo County board of health, through its executive officer, Dr. Lawhead, advised the Independent yesterday that steps were about to be taken concerning the offal that is now being thrown overboard from several houseboats that are anchored in the stream between the Southern Pacific bridge and the M street bridge. While the law was framed to cover those houseboats that are above water intakes, Dr. Lawhead thinks that it can be made applicable to houseboats located below water intakes and where a rising tide may carry debris to the water intake of towns that use the river as a source of supply. Naturally, if this ruling could be applied, all steamers and barges on the river at the present time could be prosecuted for throwing debris into the stream for the tide is absolutely known to flow upstream more than two miles. Refuse from the Southern Pacific wharf being built now between K and M streets has been found floating on the surface of the river above the Second Bannon Slough, a distance of at least five miles. From this it must be inferred that sewerage pumped out by the city of Sacramento into the river at Front and U streets must flow upstream past the Sacramento intake, and refuse thrown overboard from houseboats north of the M street bridge must flow past the Washington intake. This is a serious matter to every water user in Sacramento and Washington, for through this fact an epidemic may be conveyed through the water supply of both towns. Dr. Lawhead told the Independent that the moving of the houseboats now located between the two bridges was under consideration and may be effected soon.

Mrs. A. E. Everaert has been visiting in Oakland during the past week with friends and may prolong her visit for several weeks. In the meantime her husband is taking care of the home ranch at West Sacramento.

Yesterday several residents of the West Sacramento auto camp were taking advantage of a fair supply of water that had been pumped into the swimming tank in that locality. The supply, however, was not deep enough and has been shut down until two more wells can be sunk within the coming week. Joe Pereira is determined to ge a first-class supply of water from these wells for use in his swimming tank.

Last Friday Joseph Shaw, an old resident of Washington and secretary of the Washington Water & Light Company, collapsed on the sidewalk at Third and Harriett streets, but not far from his home. He was conveyed by Clyde Crenshaw in an automobile to his home and has so far recovered that he is again able to be around.

A. F. Cate, a resident of Sacramento, came across the bridge last Monday to try out his new automobile, and wishing to test its speed, went past the public school building on Elizabeth street at about thirty-five miles an hour, even though Speed Officer Sharpnack was looking at him. After being arrested, Cate was advised regarding the speed laws of the state and pleading guilty for the first time, he was fined five dollars, which he paid.

Mrs. George Beale and her two girls left last Wednesday morning to spend a month at Santa Cruz. This yearly visit to the seashore has been in anticipation for sometime past.

Mrs. B. Robbins has returned to her home from a prolonged visit in Oakland and other Bay cities.

Frank Beale is about to depart from the regular procedure of affairs this year when he takes his vacation. Last year with Ed Moss he went to Canada to make a test of the good stuff that is reported to be on tap there. This year he is going farther still, for not only will he visit in Canada, but he will go east as far as Philadelphia, where he has relatives, and at the same time he will visit in New York, Washington and other large eastern cities. Frank wants to see if the stories that are being told about the deliveries of good booze in Washington and New York are true, and believing that some have been exaggerated, he is going to test it out for himself. Frank refuses to take Moss with him this year because on previous occasions he has had trouble with him, owing to the fact that Moss is too much of a greenhorn. Beale will be gone at least two months and may even make a trip to Ireland before returning.

Mrs. J. A. Allerton returned Tuesday, accompanied by her two youngest daughters, after spending a few days at Cottonwood. Miss Ramona Allerton is confined to her home with serious illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Williams, who were recently married, will make their home in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pollet and Mrs. Harriet Pollet, residents of Seattle, Wash., arrived here Wednesday night to visit with F. L. White, Sr., and Mrs. Jane Buckingham. Mrs. Harriet Pollet, Mrs. Herbert Pollet and Mrs. Buckingham are sisters of F. L. White, Sr., The first of the three sisters will make an extended visit in Washington, while the other Seattle residents have left for a tour of Mexico and Southern California.

Mrs. William Hughes of Berkeley and her mother, Mrs. F. L. White, Sr., of Washington arrived last Sunday.

Mrs. Mary Noyes, Mrs. R. E. Jane and son, Robert Jane, have left for Salmon Falls to spend the week-end at the Boy Scouts' summer camp.

Mr. and Mrs. James Chambers and son, Earl, left last Sunday for Bodega Bay, where they will visit for an extended period.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Brietzke and daughter left last Saturday for a month's stay at Santa Cruz.

Miss Virginia Gale, who recently suffered a broken arm, is rapidly recovering.

Mrs. John McNeven and Mrs. Ray Peek and children have left for Pacific Grove, where they will remain several days on a pleasure trip.

MOVEMENT TO INCORPORATE WASHINGTON AS CITY OF THE SIXTH CLASS STARTED BY BOOSTERS' CLUB

At the regular meeting of the Washington Boosters Club in the town hall last Tuesday evening a movement was started for the incorporation of the town in an endeavor to rectify conditions on the river front with which the people are extremely dissatisfied.

Lately a great deal of talk has been heard concerning these conditions and the Independent has been publishing in part some of the rumors and some of the scandal that were current.

When the proposal was made last Tuesday night that the town be incorporated in order to improve these conditions it was taken up with avidity by those present and when a motion was made to appoint a committee of three to take preliminary steps for the incorporation, it was carried with a bang.

Ray Peek, who was presiding in the absence of the regular president, Mrs. Cameron, was authorized to appoint a committee of three to investigate, to ascertain preliminary costs, to secure data that would be necessary after incorporation and to inquire into the legal phases of the question.

Peek named on the committee of investigation Joe Pereira, P. A. Fitzgerald and himself.

This evening this committee will meet at some convenient place and consult as to the best method of procedure, the adibisibility of the action and the preliminary cost to the taxpayers.

Incorporation was considered to be the only real method through which the community can get rid of some of the element that is now not only a scandal in the eyes of the people but is threatening the morals of the growing generation.

Mothers fear for the example shown their children by these derelicts on the river front who have become victims of canned heat and who in their delirium, indulge in the most immoral conduct on the river front.

It must be said that these derelicts are nearly all from Sacramento, having wandered across the bridge to get out of the way of the police force, and who carefully watch the movements of the lone constable in Washington, Henry Buckingham.

Last Tuesday in the police court in Sacramento, nine vagrants were discharged from custody and told to get out of town. They had been picked up the night before in the western end of Sacramento and since the Sacramento jails are filled, the only thing that can be done is discharge them with the warning, "get out of town in less than half an hour."

In this way Yolo becomes the stamping ground for these derelicts.

It is to remedy these conditions that the movement to incorporate has been started. There are other conditions that can also be rectified under incorporation and that cannot be handled now under the county government.

The Independent will advise its readers as the work goes along and will keep its subscribers posted regarding necessary actions leading to incorporation.

In his travels around Washington yesterday, the writer asked several property owners about this incorporation idea. Many of them fear the added cost of government and are not enthusiastic for incorporation. Many taxpayers fear the subsequent cost of improvements that may fall in incorporation. Many taxpayers fear that voluntary service would practically be no service from a board of trustees or council or whatever else may be adopted in incorporation.

Then again there are others who openly say, "We can do nothing here until the town is incorporated. The streets must be laid, sidewalks must be built, sewers must be installed, before Washington can move forward.

"And certainly we want to move forward as other towns are moving. Look at North Sacramento, now incorporated and a wildnerness ten years ago. Look at Davis that stood still in a mudhole for years and only started growing after it was incorporated. We want decent conditions in this town for ourselves and our children and we want to go ahead under sanitary and moral conditions."

These are the opposite sides of the question that will have the attention of the committee at its meeting Friday evening. Data will also be secured concerning cost of incorporation such as attorney's fees and the particular kind of government to govern the community should incorporation be successful.

At its meeting Tuesday evening the Boosters Club also noted the absence of the president, Mrs. Cameron, and its vice president, Mrs. P. A. Hart, both of whom are absent on their vacations.

Attention was drawn also to the fact that campers still continue to use the roadways and streets as public camping grounds. Supervisor Beardslee promised to rectify these conditions and his action in the matter is earnestly awaited.

A committee was appointed by the chair to interview the school trustees concerning the possibility of a fire in the public school building. This committee consists of Mrs. J. P. Floris, Mrs. Ed. Esycheck and Mrs. C. H. Painter. They promised to see the school trustees during this present week and urge on them the necessity of placing a watchman in the school during the epidemic that now seems to prevail in the burning of schools.

Should a fire occur in the Washington public school it would mean a loss to the community or the school district of at least $50,000, and the Boosters Club believes that it would be economy to place a watchman at the building to prevent such a catastrophe.

Fire Chief Dave Barry, who was present at the meeting last Tuesday evening, advised the club that the two principal causes of fire at the present time are, first, the burning of rubbish by householders without proper care in extinguishing the remains of the fire, and, second, the use of defective chimney flues that are left for long periods without cleaning.

Barry also told the meeting that the volunteer fire boys offered their services free of charge to the water company to repair the gas engine that is part of the equipment in the pumping plant, if only the necessary parts are bought by the Washington Water and Light Company.

With direct pumping into the water mains the pressure could be raised 50 or 55 pounds, whereas at the fire on Thursday, July 17, in the Sacramento Transportation Company's plant, the pressure was practically nil.

Attention was also drawn once more to the condition of the water intake for Washington. This seems to be a serious affair in the eyes of the Boosters Club because, at the present writing, the running water of the Sacramento River does not pass the intake but flows back toward it owing to a jetty that was built a few years ago by the federal government.

At little cost the Washington intake could be extended further into the stream, thus avoiding this condition.

BOND ELECTION HELD TODAY IN WEST SACRAMENTO

Landowners of the West Sacramento district voted at West Sacramento headquarters today on the question of postponing the payment of bonds in the amount of $171,000 until January 1, 1941.

These bonds would be due and payable in three separate amounts of $57,000 each on January 1, 1925, January 1, 1926, and January 1, 1927.

At the time the Independent went to press voting was still going on with an apparent deep interest on the part of the landholders in the district. The result will be announced in next week's issue of this paper.

Impostors have always made a pretense of righteousness.

New the district attorney of Sacramento County is accused of breaking the laws that he pretends to enforce.

Just like the prohibitionist who takes his nip once in a while.

REMEDY WILL BE FOUND SOON TO CHANGE DEATH CURVE

Bids are being advertised by the state highway commission for the improvement of the state highway through Washington, and when the necessary time elapses those bids will be taken into consideration by the board.

This information was given the Independent yesterday from a reliable source.

From information at hand the object in view is said to be the elimination of "death curve" at Fifth and Anne streets that is now considered dangerous.

It appears that the new route for the state highway through Washington will be located to start west of the present subway at Fifth street about two blocks, thence through another subway under the Sacramento Northern Railway, and thence along the borrow-pit north of the railroad embankment as far as the extension of Third street to that embankment.

At that point the road will divide, one section leading to the Southern Pacific bridge and the other section leading to the M street bridge.

The borrow-pit is the chief obstacle in the way of the highway commission for it must be filled to a depth of about five feet for the entire distance from the new subway to the M street bridge.

To fill this borrow-pit and purchase a right of way, the bids are being received by the highway commission as well as to purchase a right of way from the Sacramento Northern embankment through the O'Connor lands to the junction of Third and Margaret streets.

HEAVY JOLT GIVEN SAUCY PRISONER BY JUDGE BARRY

A. W. Comiskey, arrested last Tuesday by Constable Buckingham for beating a woman in West Sacramento, was sentenced to serve sixty days in the county jail in Woodland by Judge Barry, with no alternative.

In the vicinity of the Boyd place Comiskey started abusing Hazel McAdoo of Sacramento. The boys reported the abuse to Constable Buckingham, who went to the place indicated and watched the pair in their meanderings around the county road. Both were considerably under the influence of liquor and Hazel McAdoo did not seem to care much whether she was abused or not.

Attacking her once more while the constable was waiting for them, he landed a powerful blow on Hazel's chin, putting her out of commission. It was then that Constable Buckingham placed the pair under arrest. Hazel was covered with blood and had a pair of black eyes with a bloody nose. She was induced to wash herself before entering the justice court and when cleaned up made a fairly passable appearance.

Before the court Comiskey became saucy, returning sharp answers to questions put to him by the judge.

When asked if he was ready to receive sentence, he retorted, "I might as well take it now as later on."

"Sixty days in the county jail with no alternative," was the reply of Judge Barry.

Constable Buckingham took Hazel to her home in Sacramento and then escorted Mr. Comiskey to the county bastile for sixty days.

WALNUT GROVE COUPLE AND DAUGHTER INJURED WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS

Dr. C. W. Mount, veterinarian of Walnut Grove, his wife and their 11-year-old daughter, Beryl, late Tuesday narrowly escaped serious injury when the automobile in which they were riding turned over on the Freeport road near Freeport.

Mrs. Mount was driving at the time, and it was reported to the sheriff's office she lost control of the car when another machine passed. The Mount autmobile turned over when it hit the soft sand at the side of the pavement.

They were taken to the emergency hospital, where it was found Mrs. Mount suffered a broken arm and Dr. Mount and his daughter minor cuts and bruises.

PROHIBITION IS GRADUALLY IMPROVING THE MORALITY OF THE PEOPLE

Reno, July 22.—S. Clyde Moore was yesterday sentenced by District Judge George A. Bartlett to serve fifty years in the Nevada state prison following conviction on a charge of criminal assault on his daughter, 15 years old. Attorney for Moore gave notice he would appeal to the supreme court.

Moore showed the same stoicism when sentenced that he preserved throughout his trial. Motion for a new trial was denied.

It was a dirty shame to cheat the mayor of Sacramento by refusing to cut down seven large shade trees to suit him.

LARGE LAND DEAL IN HOLLAND DISTRICT INVOLVES $170,000

Woodland, July 24.—Providing for the transfer of 615 acres of land and involving $170,000 purchase money, the Holland Land Company has just filed two big deeds here. W. A. and Agnes M. Stewart of Solano purchased 307 acres in the rich Holland district. D. A. and H. K. Stewart, also of Solano, have bought a similar acreage in the same section.

FIRE AT BAGLIN HOME DID LITTLE DAMAGE

Last Tuesday afternoon about 4:30 p. m. the chimney of the Baglin home on Third street, between Harriet and Mary streets, was giving out an immense amount of smoke, soot and cinders that apparently indicated a serious fire within the house.

Investigation by the volunteer fire force proved that it was only the chimney that was on fire and the flames were easily extinguished by the application of salt, soda and such other home remedies.

On examination between the ceiling and roof of the cottage it was found that the chimney had several large cracks that might have permitted the flames to extend if the fire had not been discovered so soon by Fire Chief Barry.

No real damage was done to the Baglin home because the quick response of the volunteer fire department prevented any extension of the flames.

$500 WORTH OF OPIUM SEIZED IN WALNUT GROVE RAID

Three Chinese were arrested late yesterday at Walnut Grove by Deputy Sheriffs Harry Bryant and Charles J. Ogle who smashed their way into an alleged opium den after breaking down a door.

Lui Hing Sui is held at the county jail today charged with selling narcotic drugs. Gee Sing and Kim Song are charged with visiting an alleged opium den.

During the raid opium valued at $500 was seized but the owner of the contrabrand goods could not be found.

COME SHARE YOUR VISION FOR WEST SACRAMENTO'S RIVERFRONT!

WEST SACRAMENTO RIVERFRONT MASTER PLAN COMMUNITY WORKSHOP

Please join City of West Sacramento staff, consultants and interested citizens for a workshop to provide public input into the West Sacramento Riverfront Master Plan Study. Issues to be addressed include:

- What should the riverfront look like?
- What kind of recreational activities should take place there?
- Where could community and cultural facilities be located?
- How do we make the riverfront more accessible to the public and more inviting to use?

Local Scene

Reading

The second in a series of three evening programs for summer readers is scheduled for Monday, July 18, at 7 p.m. at the Yolo County Library, Arthur F. Turner Branch, located at 1212 Merkley Ave. in West Sacramento. Puppeteer Mary Lou Linville will present an evening of enchantment thanks to the generous support of the East Yolo Friends of the Library.

For more information please call 371-9274.

Dinner for Hospice

Yolo Hospice will hold its first "Dinner 'n' Dancin' in the Delta" in Claksburg on Saturday, July 16, under the oaks at the home of Marlene and Dick Marshall, 50720 Babel Slough Road in Clarksburg. The event begins at 5:30 p.m. with dinner and dancing until 10 p.m. Take Jefferson Blvd. from West Sacramento towards Clarksburg (the street will be marked with a sign prior to Willow Point Road and the town of Clarksburg along the river). The minimum donation for adults is $15 and children under age nine are $7.50. All proceeds go to expand services to terminally ill patients and their families in Yolo County and Dixon.

Flea market

A community flea market will take place on Saturday, August 6, between 7 a.m. and 3 p.m. at the Community Lutheran Church, 920 Drever Street in West Sacramento (on the corner of Jefferson Blvd. and Jackson Street). There will be lots of fun for the kids, a raffle featuring great prizes, and plenty of free parking. You may obtain a space for $10 to $15 or donate items for the church to sell. For more information or to reserve your space, please call 372-5767.

Maple/Holly

The Maple Holly Steering Committee will host a public meeting at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, July 19 at the Little Baptist Church, on the corner of Michigan and Maple.

tions of West Sacramento officials or plant personnel, they did outline a number of violations at the sewage plant on South River Road.

Also in the grand jury's report was a request that city officials explain bidding procedures used to obtain equipment and services at the plant. Although full details of these concerns were not immediately available, Goeden said that at least some of the concerns were raised by the "emergency" procedures the council had authorized so that plant personnel could quickly purchase new equipment to fix problems.

"They say we didn't follow our purchasing practices," said Goeden. "What they didn't realize and didn't ask us was that the city council gave us emergency purchase authority."

He added that the grand jury requested a response to this issue, and an explanation is now being prepared for them.

Goeden also responed to comments that the state was still considering placing a moratorium on new growth in West Sacramento until it could demonstrate that its sewage plant could handle the new capacity.

A city report to the state "should relieve that concern that we can't handle what we've got and any new growth," he said. The matter will probably "go away" after the state reviews the city report on sewage capacity.

Tuttle added that she hopes West Sacramento will see renewed development and growth during her term from 1994-96.

"We've laid the groundwork (through planning) during the last couple of years, and now there will be visual signs of construction as a reward," she said.

Another thing Tuttle looks forward to is the possible adoption of a city child care ordinance to help create more child care opportunities for local workers and residents.

"The needs assessment study is coming next month, and we'll start the public process on what kind of ordinance we'd like to see."

She commented that one problem with city government during past years may have been that the council and staff tried to achieve too many different things, and wound up accomplishing too little. But that concern has now been met, she said.

"I'm glad to see the council establish a focus project list. I think for a while we've been stirring too many pots, and none of them have got cooked."

With Friday's confirmation of Potnick as vice mayor, the recent tradition of rotating the mayor and vice mayor's posts may have been broken. Although, according to one council member, Hensley (whose "turn" it was for the vice mayor's post) had privately declined the position, it would have been Kristoff's turn for the position had the council opted to offer the seat to the next in line in the rotation.

Beers and Tuttle received their political start as commission appointments of Potnick, and Beers won election to the council during the heated campaign in 1990.

Bingham doubts that the creation of an assessment district by the Port Commission is constitutional, because the commissioners are not elected representatives. Port Commissions are the only non-elected bodies in the state which have legislative authority to levy taxes.

The Port Commission is a seven member board., Each member serves a four year term. Two commissioners are appointed by the Sacramento County Board of Superivisors, two by the Sacramento City Council, one is appointed jointly by the Sacramento City Council and Board of Supervisors, one by the Yolo County Board of Supervisor's, and one by West Sacramento's City Council.

According to Bingham, the port administration understands that there are constitutional questions regarding the assessment district, and has come up with a plan to file a lawsuit against its own action in order to test the legality of the district. "The plan is that the port would actually sue itself," she said.

Bingham believes a filing a lawsuit against itself would be a waste of money. "The commission also has the authority to go to the Attorney General's office and ask for an opinion," she said.

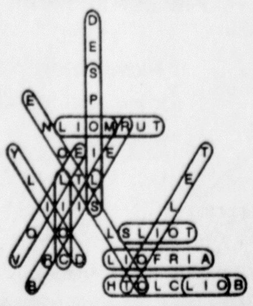

Commenting that the port would not be charged for an opinion from the Attorney General, she said that the commission should seek his advice before spending money on a lawsuit.
